BAY ST. LOUIS, MISS., SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 5, 1921.

THE BIG NEWS OF THE WEEK.

The big news of the week carried in this issue of The Echo, among other things, is the announcement given out by President Mapother, of the L. & N. R. Co., concerning improvement for local division.

30TH YEAR—No. 46.

L. AND N. PLANNING IMPROVEMENTS FOR MISSISSIPPI COAST.

President Mapother, in Address at New Orleans Yesterday, Declared Local Railroad Contemplated Over Eight Million Dollars Improvements.

BAY ST. LOUIS BRIDGE TO BE BUILT AT COST OF $844,000.

Declared the Railroad Company Willing to Assist Mississippi Gulf Coast as Soon as Proper Accommodations Were Provided—Big News.

Construction of a new bridge at Bay St. Louis to cost $844,000; one at Rigolets to cost $2,991,000 and another at Chef Menteur to cost $1,149,000 were announced as contemplated early improvements by the Louisville & Nashville Railroad in a speech before an Association of Commerce dinner in New Orleans Thursday by W. L. Mapother, president of the traffic department.

Total improvements contemplated in New Orleans and vicinity including a new outside shop and train yard at Mobile, would aggregate an expenditure of $8,207,000, the L. & N. executive declared.

Will Assist to Develop Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Mr. Mapother urged business men of New Orleans to induce private business enterprises to develop the Gulf coast, asserting the railroad company would assist in every way possible in this development. He said the company was barred from making improvements because of a law which prohibits transportation companies from making investments not related to actual operation of the roads.

He declared as soon as proper hotel and other accommodations are provided on the coast the railroad would undertake an extensive advertising campaign calculated to make that region second to no summer resort section in the country.

President Mapother outlined the proposed disbursement of this vast sum by the Louisville and Nashville as follows:

List of Improvements to be Made.

Improved freight facilities at New

A Helpful Way to Buy Bonds.

Parties wishing to save money and desirous of buying bonds that are long the best and most profitable will read with interest the new advertisement of The Hancock County Bank in this week's issue of The Echo. This plan of buying bonds is easy, and in addition the bank will give the benefit of its experience and knowledge in such transactions. Cashier Seal or anyone, connected with the Hancock County Bank will be glad to have you call and explain the plan fully.

Orleans to cost $942,000. Enlargement of the train yard at Gentilly, $183,000.

The two bridges at Rigolets and Chef Menteur, $4,140,000. Reconstruction of bridge at Bay St. Louis, $844,000.

Reconstruction of bridge at Biloxi bay trestle, $450,000. New shop and train yard at Mobile, $1,649,000.

In connection with these contemplated improvements, President Mapother announced that the Louisville & Nashville Railroad would inaugurate the fastest train of its system from New Orleans to Cincinnati on December 1. The time of the trip would be cut to 26 hours and the equipment would be equal to the finest operated by any railway company in America.

President Mapother was quizzed in regard to the probability of a new Louisville & Nashville passenger station in New Orleans, but he would not make any definite promises other than to say that, "we hope some time to take care of this situation in a manner that New Orleans will appreciate."

He said that the improvements contemplated in this section were dependent upon the action of the interstate commerce commission on an application to increase the capitalization of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company from $72,000,000 to $125,000,000. Approval of this application he explained would enable the traffic company to proceed with the issuance of $15,000,000 new stock and which would take care of the improvements outlined here and other points.

He denounced the action of the United States Rail Labor Board in Chicago last month, when the strike was averted through promise of the board not to consider for perhaps two years any other application, of the railroads to reduce wages.

"It was a cowardly surrender," he shouted, "and it is such federal interference that keeps up freight rates."

He said he knew freight rates were outrageously high. "And so is whiskey," he added, amid general applause.

HANDSOME NEW BAY ST. LOUIS BUSINESS BUILDING

NEW GARAGE BUILDING OF EDWARDS BROTHERS, BAY ST. LOUIS, MISSISSIPPI.

Bay St. Louis and Hancock County, and it might well be said the Mississippi Gulf Coast, taken an especial pride in the handsome commercial building which has just been completed, owned and occupied by Edwards Brothers, local selling agents for the Ford automobile and Fordson tractor. This building is constructed of brick and concrete, and in point of arrangement and convenience is the very last word in garage building. Located on Main, near the corner of Front Street, and directly opposite the postoffice building, the location is one of the very best in the city, in the heart of the business district, and such a building with its vast proportions is a distinct acquisition. The firm of Edwards Bros., is composed of Messrs. John K., in charge of the Ford branch at New Orleans; Edwin W., in charge of the Ford branch at Gulfport for Harrison County and George H., in charge of the Ford branch for Hancock County. These gentlemen are natives of Bay St. Louis and this county is very proud of so progressive and successful citizens, and the handsome new building, a picture of which The Echo takes pride in presenting, is an earnest of their enterprise and success. Mr. E. J. Gartrell is a manager for the local branch assisting Mr. George H. Edwards. L. J. Norman is chief office salesman; Miss Myrtle Ansley, cashier-bookkeeper; A. G. Nichols, shop foreman.

FOOTBALL GAME. SSC Wins Over Tulane Reserves.

The SSC Rock-a-Chaws last Saturday defeated the fast Tulane Reserves of New Orleans by a score of 12 to 0.

The first touchdown was made in the first few minutes of play. On the kick-off one of the Reserves fumbled the ball on our twenty-yard line. Glover scored the ball on this fumble and ran for a touchdown. During the second and third quarters the two teams went back and forth in the center of the field practically the whole time except in the last of the second quarter when the Rock-a-Chaws came within fifteen yards of the goal, but the time prevented what seemed to be a sure touchdown. The Rock-a-Chaws. The other touchdown which came in the last quarter was the result of the splendid playing of Schoelgel who bucked the line four times for 40 yards and then Jaubert bucked the other six yards for a touchdown.

Among the players deserving praise are Scaffie and Keiffer, who did fine work in the breaking up of plays which probably paved the way for victory. In the mentioning the names of Glover and Fruge cannot be overlooked, whose speed led to making of the touchdowns. Cerniglia at left-tackle also played a game worthy of mentioning. The team as a whole worked better than in any game this season, and show prospects of being the best team that St. Stanislaus has put out in years.

The line-up was as follows:

Tulane Reserves	Position	Saint Stanislaus
Zerkowley	L. E.	Keiffer
Laubie	L. T.	Caire
Burgeret	L. G.	Reed
Lawhorn	C.	Brittingham

SSC Reserves Win From Verina H.

The SSC Reserves added another victim to their list on last Sunday, the 31st by defeating the strong Verina team of New Orleans by a score of 9 to 0.

The first and only touchdown of the game was made during the first quarter by Joe Jordina by a forward pass from Montz to him for 25 yards.

The next two quarters afforded some good football playing, the ball being in the center of the field most of the time. Verina played their best in the third quarter trying to get a touch-down via the aerial route, but they were in vain as the Rock-a-Chaws' little brothers had learned something about breaking up such things as passes, etc.

In the fourth quarter one Mr. Sidney Montz appeared in the line-up by something that is rarely seen on a local gridiron. He kicked a drop-kick for a distance of 55 yards, earning for his team three more points, which with the touchdown already made gave them nine points and the game.

Gossin, Montz, Jones and Sigerson also did splendid work in the winning of the victory.

School Notes.

The monthly tests have been completed. The results were as a whole, very satisfactory. They showed that the boys at the S. S. C. are grasping and holding what they are taught. One may pass the rooms at almost any time and see some of the boys studying; indeed every one is enthused over his work and is putting forth his best effort to uphold the reputation of his class and grasping something that cannot be taken away from him—an education.

Class '22 gave a party on Halloween night for the entertainment of the student body. It was quite a success and everyone enjoyed themselves immensely. Among some of the stunts pulled off was a cigarette smoking contest. It showed plenty of talent on the part of most of the competitors. For strictly speaking, most of the competition were professionals. Everyone cheered when an amateur scorched his teeth trying to beat a professional smoker. Jacks braying contest also brought lots of talent. Most of it however was from Louisiana but Mississippi was strangely represented. The thirty-pound boxing contest proved very interesting, especially when "Tex" one of the boxers charged a crowd while he was blindfolded.

The people of Bay St. Louis, (the girls included) will no doubt be glad to know that four players from Bro. Justin's Reserve team have been promoted to the "Regulars." These four are Sidney Montz, the hero, who in last Sunday's game pulled a "drop-kick" for 35 yards; Clarence (Jake) Hassenger, a tackle of note; Peter Jones the full back who scored the lone touch-down off the game two weeks ago with the "Gridgers," and Roland Menon a promising line-man.

CENTRAL SCHOOL NOTES.

Interesting to an unusual degree was the program last Friday afternoon when the Third and Fourth grades came on the stage with their clever stunts that brought enthusiastic applause. After the two hosts who had acted as ushers seated the visitors, the following program was rendered:

Song—"Welcome"—Girls.
"The Difference"—Edris Vairin.
"Mother Goose"—3rd and 4th grades.

"Peggy O'Neal"—Song—Girls.
"October"—Six girls.
Recitation—"Guilty or not Guilty"—Mildred Piper.

All Saints' Day was observed in the public schools by giving a holiday by which the children could engage in the affairs of the day.

The Parent-Teachers Club of the Central School met last Friday afternoon and elected for the session the following officers: President, Mrs. C. A. Breath; Vice President, Mrs. Orth; Secretary, Miss Olga von Droszkosky; Treasurer, Mrs. Leon McCluer. The regular meeting will be held the fourth Friday afternoon of every month.

The Seventh and Eighth grades had a jolly Halloween Party at the Central School Monday evening.

Keeping pace with the extensive program of Disarmament the 11th grade English class is making an earnest effort to complete original papers on "Peace First in the Hearts of Men" to be read before the school on Armistice Day.

The main social interest of the school for the past week has centered around Halloween. Ghosts walked and the witches and black cats came out in all their weirdness on last Friday night at the Central School, when the members of the Senior class and with the Faculty were honored by the tenth grade.

The guests were met at the door and directed to Blue Beard's dark den where one of his wives were slain, head cut off, eyeballs removed, and guests hands filled with her bones, and fingers dipped in the blood. From here they had to go to the Blunders Room to enter the auditorium where Jack o' Lanterns threw mysterious lights and shadows over the witches coudron and Gypsy's tent.

After "Ghosts" was played each boy was given one newspaper and twelve pins to create a dress for the partner. Hammell Jackson designed and made a beautiful bridal costume for his girl. Punch, cake, and other refreshments were freely disposed of during the evening and when the good nights were said the Seniors departed wishing they could have another year in the Bay High School.

Fifth and Sixth Grade pupils are selling pencils to get a framed picture of President Harding.

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION.

President Harding issued a proclamation tonight designating Thursday, November 24th, as a day of thanksgiving, devotion and prayer and urging the people to give thanks "for all that has been rendered unto them," and to pray "for a continuance of the Divine fortune which has been showered so generously upon this nation." The proclamation:

"That season has come when, alike in pursuance of a devout people's time-honored custom in grateful recognition of favoring nation fortunes, it is proper that the president should summon the nation to a day of devotion, of thanksgiving for blessings bestowed, and of prayer for guidance in modes of life that may deserve continuance of Divine favor.

"Foremost among our blessings is the return of peace, and the approach to normal ways again. The year has brought us again into relations of amity with all nations after a long period of struggle and turbulence. In thankfulness therefor, we may well unite in the hope that Providence will vouchsafe approval to the things we have done, the aims which have guided us, the aspirations which have inspired us. We shall be prospered as we shall deserve prosperity, seeking not alone for the material things but for those of the spirit as well, earnestly trying to help others, asking before all else the privilege of service. As we render thanks anew for the exaltation which came to us, we may fittingly petition that moderation and wisdom shall be granted to rest upon all who are in authority in the tasks they must discharge. Their hands will be steadied, their purposes strengthened in answer to our prayers.

"Ours has been a favored nation in the bounty which God has bestowed upon it. The great trial of humanity, though indeed we bore our part as well as we were able, left us comparatively little scarred. It is for us to recognize that we have been thus favored, and when we gather at our altars to offer up thanks, we will do well to pledge in humility and all sincerity, our purpose to prove deserving. We have been raised up and preserved in national power and consequence, as part of a plan whose wisdom we cannot question. Thus believing, we can do no less than hold our nation the willing instrument of the Providence which has so wonderfully favored us. Opportunity for very great service awaits us if we shall prove equal to it. Let our prayers be raised for direction in the right paths. Under God, our responsibility is great, to our own first, to all men after God, to all mankind in God's own justice.

"Now, therefore, I, Warren G. Harding, president of the United States, hereby designate Thursday, the twenty-fourth day of November, to be observed by the people as a day of thanksgiving, devotion and prayer, urging that at their heartsides and their altars they will give thanks for all that has been rendered unto them, and will pray for a continuance of the Divine fortune which has been showered so generously upon this nation.

"In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused to be affixed the seal of the United States of America.

"Done at the capital of the United States, the thirty-first day of October, in the year of our Lord, nineteen hundred and twenty-one, and of the independence of the United States one hundred and forty-sixth.

"By the President: WARREN G. HARDING.
CHARLES E. HUGHES, Secretary of State."

WHO MAKES THIS TOWN.

It isn't any one man, or half dozen. It is every person in the town, as well as those who make a practice of coming to town.

We have citizens who are so modest and retiring that they imagine their influence is of no value, or has no weight—that it makes no difference to the town what they do or do not do.

They are mistaken. We have become so accustomed to the progressive citizen that we expect to hear from him on any subject of importance. We would be more or less nonplused if he did not come to the front.

But it is the action of the quiet and retiring element that adds impetus and puts real life into a movement for civic improvement. They may not assume to be leaders, but when they get behind and push the weight is so great there is no such thing as a premature halt.

Little waves lapping on to the seashore precede the great tidal wave that sweeps everything before it.

It is so in community life.

In each community there are a few who are always promptly active in every good movement. They are the little waves that never rest, that are ever creeping upon the beach, advancing and receding, incessantly on the move until they create the great wave of public sentiment that moves irresistible in to victory and achievement.

It is the mass of quiet citizens who constitute the bulk of that public sentiment. It is the citizen who possibly thinks that his own individual opinion has but little influence upon community life. It is the one who acts after others have talked.

You, therefore, are the one of the number who make this town. You are expected to aid in making it even a better town.

You can do it if you will.

SOME OF HIS DUTIES.

The Elizabethtown, N. J., News of a recent date tells of the many who have written of the tribulations of the country editors, but remarked that it is passing strange that no one had ever thought to speak of the joys. In describing these pleasures and privileges the New Jersey paper says:

He stands ahead of the preacher, the lawyer and the public speaker because he never talks to empty benches, but speaks in all the homes where his paper goes. He never makes inopportune speeches which generally disgust the audience, but writes with deliberation and premeditation. The preacher's influence for good seldom reaches farther than his congregation, while the editor's field reaches all the congregations in the county. The lawyer makes a good speech in the courthouse and only 100 or 200 persons hear him, but when the editor writes a good editorial it is copied in various papers in the State. The editor distributes more flowers than a florist and he asks nothing in return for them but thanks. The editor has an opportunity to do the individual citizen a service and he never hesitates to do it if consistent with obligations to the public. The editor has the greatest opportunity to convert men and women to his way of thinking on public questions. As the lightning on the shore warns the ships from the rocks, the editor can warn the people from the frauds and fakes of the day. The editor has the greatest opportunity to protect society from evil by standing for the law and creating public sentiment for it. The editor never tires of boosting his town and county, and if both do not grow it is not his fault. He helps the deserving young men with words of commendation and restrain the old by words of warning. His field of usefulness is broader than anyone else in the community, and if he doesn't get any return for his efforts for settlement he has sufficient reward in seeing things get better. He rejoices in his opportunity for service to his fellow men, his town and his country and goes on his way any return for it.

HARRISON IS THORN IN REPUBLICAN SIDE ON SENATE FLOOR.

Pat Is a Born Fighter, and Is Ever Ready to Embarrass the Republicans Who Have Broke Faith With People.

NEVER TAKE AN UNFAIR ADVANTAGE TO CHASTISE.

His Personality Is Forceful Yet Pleasing—Ever Ready to Fight and Always Heard From in No Uncertain Terms.

Washington, Oct. 27.—To the Republicans of the Senator Pat Harrison is a study in physiology. They do not understand him; he is too deep even for the long mental plumb line of the astute Lodge. In short and slangy phraseology they do "not get" Pat at all. This confessed baffling mystery about the junior Mississippi senator relates neither to his personality nor his mentality. As to these attributes his Republican colleagues have no doubt. They know that his personality is forceful, yet pleasing, and that his mentality is of a respect commanding quality. It is at this point that his confusion begins. When they are unable to grasp or understand is Pat's attitude toward the Republican majority in the Senate in particular and the national administration, as represented by the titular leadership of President Harding, in general. They do not understand how he can be so enticingly agreeable in social intercourse and in the senate chamber be a tireless tormentor. In other words, on the outside of the Senate chamber Pat might be said to be a rose, but on the inside of the chamber he is a veritable thorn in the side of the Republican majority. Hence the Mississippi senator has the Republicans guessing as they have not guessed before.

Harrison a Born Fighter.

The reason for this Republican quandary as to Senator Harrison is attributable to his persistent prodding of the G. O. P. for their legislative inconsistencies, fallacies and shortcomings. They cannot put anything over without hearing from Pat. The majority may run the steam-roller over the minority, but Senator Pat Harrison always rises to his feet with enough breath left in his lungs to protest, to talk back, and the disconcerting thing to the Republicans is that his verbal blows generally sting and stun. Whenever the Republican majority starts an offensive, the first Democratic senator they encounter in the minority first line is Senator Harrison, who is there to give battle, to offer stout resistance, and on more than one occasion he has prevented what otherwise might have been a successful onslaught. And in so applying his tact and vigor and resources Senator Harrison does not seek to dwarf or circumscribe the activities of any of his Democratic colleagues all of whom admire his indomitable initiative. Pat harries the Republicans because he loves a fight and because he does not intend that their evasions, double shifting and misleading pretensions shall be perpetuated without a voice of protest. He knows that this Republican dominated Congress has failed absolutely to make good to redeem the pledges the Republican party made to the people in the last national campaign. He knows that they promised and pledged many things that were unattainable and the delivery of which they knew at the time was impracticable if not impossible. Wherefore, whenever he catches Republican leaders attempting to conceal a bad situation of falsifying facts, he speaks his mind out in meeting and he speaks it in a tone and in language that permit of no misunderstanding. Yet personally Senator Harrison is admired by these same Republicans whom he castigates at every opportunity, because Pat never takes an unfair advantage or chastises in malice or hate. He will go into any sort of a mix-up but he always goes in for a clean and a fair fight.

The Same Pat Harrison.

Five or six Republican senators who served in the House with Senator Harrison are wont to remark that Pat was not so "rantankerous" a member of the lower House. They are mistaken, for the same Pat Harrison was in the House, but in the latter body he was differently circumstanced and environed. During all but two years of his service in the House the democrats were in control of both branches of Congress, and Woodrow Wilson was president. The Democratic majority in both houses were working in accord with the executive and the promises made to the people in both national campaigns were fulfilled. Pat, in those halcyon days of Democracy in the saddle, was happy in the consciousness of legislation for the general public weal, and Republican opposition was negligible. As Senator Harrison, Pat is a wholly different body and performing under totally different conditions. Aside from debate senator is privileged to discuss any subject that he may elect. There is no such freedom in the House, where a member talks by the clock and is constrained to confine his remarks to the bill under consideration. But one impelling incentive to Senator Harrison's persistent pursuit of the Republican majority in the Senate is the memory—still fresh—of their cruel treatment of Woodrow Wilson, who they embarrassed in every way that partisan hate could devise. Every recommendation that he made to Congress in the last two years of his term was perverted and disregarded, and every effort he made to get constructive legislative results was blocked and defeated. All the while the Republicans were crying out to the people: "Wait until our party is returned to power, and we'll right every existing wrong and make everybody happy and prosperous." The Republican party was restored to full control of the government on March 4, 1921, and their campaign promises remain unredempted. It is because he is reminding them of this fact that the Republican majority in the Senate confesses mystification at Senator Pat Harrison. And for all that, Pat Harrison would be missed from the Senate more than any man in it.

Assistant State S. S. Secretary Addresses Central School.

Tuesday morning of last week, Mr. Powell, the able assistant State Sunday School secretary, from Jackson, conducted the opening exercises at the school. He made a short address, which was very interesting and enjoyable. After his talk he acted as music director for a few moments, during which time he led with a number of live songs. He made such an agreeable impression that he was invited to return the following morning, Wednesday, which was accepted and carried out.

Mr. Powell, who was in Bay St. Louis attending the county Sunday School convention, proved himself a fine speaker, and brought a message of cheer and courage to all who heard him.

The figure 8 crowns on old-fashioned washday methods. For it is the magic figure in the 1900 Cataract Electric Washer which forces the water back and forth through the clothes, in a perfect figure 8 motion forty times oftener than in the ordinary washer.

The swinging wringer is reversible, and also works electrically. The copper tub hasn't one single part in it—nothing to lift out and clean after the wash is finished!

We'd be glad to deliver a 1900 Washer right to your home, and let you try it out. When you have seen what it can do, you may start paying for it on terms to suit your convenience.

"The Needs of the Railroads Are The Needs of the South"

The following quotations from the notable address of John F. Wallace before the Southern Commercial Convention, at Washington, in December, 1908, are interesting and well worth present consideration:

"The greatest need of Southern railroads is the confidence and support of the communities through which they run and serve."

"If the South is to reach its highest state of development, its transportation facilities should not lag, but should lead the march of progress, and this development should be stimulated in every possible way; and men of the South should never forget for a single moment that the needs of the railroads are the needs of the South."

"The railroads of the United States in the South and West have been projected and constructed, and to a great extent financed, by men whose inspiration was a firm belief in an unknown future and whose assets were largely composed of hope and an undying faith in the future development of their country."

"The prosperity of the Southern railroads and the prosperity of the South are irrevocably bound together and the needs of the South are identical with the needs of the railroads. What the railroads in this section need to-day is a 'solid South' behind and beneath them."

"When it is considered that eighty per cent. or more (of the money invested in railroads) would be spent for Southern labor and Southern material, and would find its way through every artery and vein of Southern trade and commerce, it would seem that the 'solid South' would be thoroughly alive to the burning fact—the needs of the railroads are the needs of the South."

"The need of the hour is a recognition of the interdependent relations which exist between us all, and to remember—intensively, actively, potently, remember—that an injury to one is an injury to all and that 'united we stand, divided we fall.'"

Although these words were written several years before the great war, they are as true to-day and as vital as when spoken. Since the war, however, a different spirit has come over the public, as there is not now that antipathy to railroads and large corporations that formerly existed. The war proved how necessary the railroads are and brought home graphically to every one the importance of transportation. But aside from the realization of this general truth, the public has now begun to see that its local railroad—the railroad which brings it food, wearing apparel and manufactured products that it cannot make itself and takes away those which it does produce to be converted into cash—is a part of itself. It must co-operate with its local railroad—work with it and not against it.

The L. & N. Railroad, like the railroads in other sections, has invested capital, initiative, energy and brains in developing the Southern territory, and particularly the Gulf Coast. It still has in mind further great development for the years to come. The needs of the L. & N. Railroad are your needs and your needs are likewise the problems of the railroad. With the spirit of co-operation these problems will be solved.

GOV. RUSSELL SAYS TALK OF HIGH TAXES ALL "STUFF"
In a little luncheon given Governor Lee M. Russell at one of the cafes of Gulfport by a few of the citizens of that city, September 15, the Governor is credited by the Gulfport Daily Herald of the 16th, with the following as to taxes:

"We must be optimists, he said. There is no great depression in business but simply an adjustment after the strenuous war time. We are not over-taxed in Mississippi. The property in the State is valued at only about one-third of its value as a basis of taxation."

In effect it will be seen that the Governor says that the cry that is going up from one end of the State to the other against the present excessive high taxes is all "stuff." Of course, it can be readily seen, says Grenada Sentinel, that a man who is getting $625.00 per month out of the public treasury, besides free servants at the expense of the State and board for these servants, and also a "contingent fund" of $5,000 to draw from on the side and to pay traveling expenses, finds it very difficult to feel the sting of the tax-gatherer. Where is there a real sensible man who will agree with Gov. Russell who says, "We are not over-taxed in Mississippi?" We want to see the color of the man's eye who is not on the public payroll who says the Governor is right. We want his picture to place in a museum and his name to lay before the voters of Mississippi at the next State election. Speak out, or forever after hold your peace. The Governor also is wrong when he says that property is assessed only at "about one-third its value."

We are forced to conclude that one of the Governor's former political friends, who not long ago said, "Russell can build a more fool thing than anybody else ever saw outside of a lunatic asylum," was right. It appears that the Governor is Mississippi Last in the List.

Port Gibson Reville:
A recent census report places Mississippi at the tail end of the Southern States in point of money invested in manufacturing enterprises. A few years ago the State stood near the middle of the list in this respect, but every census has set us a little lower until we have reached the bottom. While this is not a pleasing state of affairs, at the same time there is comfort in knowing that we cannot get any lower.

Of course there is a reason for this gradual decline, for Mississippi stands about third from the top of the list of States in amount of timber, and this item alone should go far toward keeping the State from losing so heavily in manufacturing. We are forced to believe that our laws which are so adverse to capital, are responsible for this slump.

Now, we can in a measure correct our past mistakes if the masses of the people will demand of the legislature such changes in our laws as will convince foreign capital that we are going to protect it; that the powers of the State revenue agent must be limited and that he be placed on a salary rather than receive one-fifth of everything he wrings from those we invite to invest in the state.

SUPERVISORS TO FIX ROAD, SCHOOL AND COUNTY TAXES.
To The Tax-Payer—
The most important step in fixing your taxes will be taken at the next meeting of the Board of Supervisors beginning Monday, November 7th, 1921. Then the Board WILL FIX THE ANNUAL TAX RATES, FOR THE COUNTY, FOR THE SCHOOL DISTRICTS, AND FOR THE ROAD DISTRICTS. In some counties, the taxes imposed by the Supervisors, last year were six times as great as the State tax, and most of the State tax was returned to the counties for the public schools and Confederate pensions. Some counties received more from the State than the total State tax collected from all the tax payers in the county.

The development of our public school system and the construction of good roads are desired by all; yet these are largely responsible for the increase made in taxes in recent years. You may verify this for yourself by comparing your tax receipt for last year with that of ten years ago.

The Supervisors then determine whether these expenses will be continued, increased, or curtailed for the present fiscal year. Their decision then determines whether your taxes will be more or less than last year.

POULTRY FLOCKS

TEST EGGS AT LEAST TWICE

Make inspection on Seventh and Fourteenth Days for Those Infertile or With Dead Germs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
It is of little profit for a hen to sit patiently for 21 days if the eggs over which she fluffs her feathers are infertile or if the germs in them have died. Neither does it pay to run an incubator for three weeks, with its attendant care and expense, if the eggs in it are not fertile.
All poultry owners who raise chicks should be thoroughly familiar with the method of testing eggs. An egg, whether it is fertile or not, has a small grayish spot, known as the germinal spot, on the surface of the yolk. As soon as a fertile egg is placed under a hen or in an incubator the development of the germ begins. All eggs should be tested at least twice during the incubation period, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. This is done preferably on the seventh and fourteenth days. The infertile eggs, and those with dead germs, should then be removed. White-shell eggs can be tested on the fourth or fifth day, whereas the development of eggs having brown shells often can not be seen by the use of the ordinary egg tester until the seventh day.

A satisfactory home-made egg tester or candle can be made with a shoe box or any other box large enough to hold the lamp. Cut a hole a little larger than a 25-cent piece in the side of the box, so that when the lamp is placed inside the box the hole in the side will be opposite the flame. Make a hole also in the top of the box large enough to prevent the top from catching fire from the heat of the lamp. When the chimney is long enough, allow it to extend through the top of the box. This permits the heat to escape and avoids the risk of fire. Special care should always be exercised in using kerosene lamps in candle testing to prevent fire. To prevent further possibility of fire, a wooden box may be used in place of a pasteboard one, and if desired, the opening through which the chimney extends may be lined with tin or asbestos.

Electric or gas lamps may be used in a box with a hole in the same way that the kerosene lamp is used. The hole which is in the side of the box should be on the same level as the light. The eggs may also be tested by sunlight or daylight, using a shade or curtain with a hole in it for the light to shine through.

Testing with a tester or candle should be done in a dark room. Hold each egg with the large end up, so that the size of the air cell may be seen, as well as the condition of the embryo or germ. An infertile egg when candled looks perfectly clear, the same as a fresh one; while a fertile egg shows a dark spot known as the embryo, with a mass of little blood veins radiating in all directions. When the germ is dead, and the egg has been incubated for at least 48 hours, the blood settles away from the embryo toward the edges of the yolk, forming in some cases an irregular circle of blood, known as a blood ring. Eggs vary in this respect, some showing only a streak of blood.

All infertile eggs, and those with dead germs, should be removed at the end of the first test. Eggs with dead germs soon decay and give off a bad odor if allowed to remain. The infertile eggs make good feed for young chickens.

At the second test, on the fourteenth day, the eggs containing strong, living embryos will be dark and well filled up, showing a clear, sharp, distinct line between the air cell and the growing embryo, while eggs with dead germs will show only partial development and lack this clear, distinct outline.

The period of incubation for hen's eggs is 21 days, but usually some of the eggs hatch the evening of the twentieth day. Sometimes it happens, however, that the hatch will run over the twenty-first day, especially during cool weather.

Water is Essential.
One dozen eggs contain about one pint of water. Clean, fresh, pure water should be kept constantly before the hens and should be renewed at least once daily, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

DAIRY FACTS

SUCCULENT FEED FOR DAIRY

Modern Machinery for Planting and Cultivating Roots Makes Work Less Laborious.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
With the development of the silo many dairy cow owners have overlooked the value of roots as a succulent feed, for cattle. Mangel-wurzels, beets, carrots, and turnips are the principal roots grown for this purpose. They are particularly adapted to the cooler and more moist portions of the country. The principal drawback to their use is the labor of growing, harvesting and storing them. On the other hand, say specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, root crops have a distinct advantage for small dairies, as it is generally accepted that a silo will not prove economical where fewer than six animals are being fed. Roots may be stored in a proper cellar, or buried in the ground, and can be taken out, in any desired quantity without injury to the remainder.

A surprising amount of roots can be produced on a small acreage. A field of 25 tons per acre of mangel-wurzels is nothing unusual, while in England, where roots are used almost entirely to supply succulent food, the yield per acre is increased still further by intensive farming.

Other kinds of beets, and also turnips, however, should be fed after milking rather than before, as they give a bad flavor to the product. Yellow carrots impart a desirable color to the milk. For feeding purposes the mangels will probably be found the most practical beet. Among carrots, the Long Orange is recommended because of its large size and heavy yield. It forms a long, thick root, and is very easily grown. The White Yagers or Belgian is grown exclusively for stock, and is an even heavier yielder. The rutabaga is recommended as a good turnip. The same soils and methods of cultivating are adapted to all three kinds of roots.

The soil should be well enriched, and should be one that warms up quickly in the spring. Most growers regard sandy loam as best adapted to the culture of root crops, this being particularly true of the early spring crop.

An Acre or Two of Roots Will Feed a Small Dairy Herd.

For later crops heavy soils can be employed, and muck soils are widely used for the midsummer and fall crops. Land that is in good physical condition as the result of early and proper handling, well supplied with available plant food and rich in organic matter, is essential to best results. Applications of stable manure at the rate of 20 to 30 tons per acre are advisable, and this may profitably be supplemented by the use of commercial fertilizer containing at least 2 per cent nitrogen, 8 per cent phosphoric acid, and 4 per cent potash.

The seed is sown in rows at least 80 inches apart if horse cultivation is practiced, but under hand cultivation they need not be more than 15 to 18 inches. Ordinarily about 6 pounds of best seed per acre is required. Seed is ordinarily covered to a depth of 1 to 1 1/2 inches. As best seed is rather slow in germination, the practice of sowing some quick-sprouting seed along with it is sometimes followed. These plants serve as markers for the rows before the beets are up, so that cultivation may be begun before the beets show above the ground. Radishes are frequently used for this purpose.

Best seeds come in clusters, and it is inevitable that thinning by hand will be required.

Roots intended for winter storage are allowed to stand in the field until just before heavy autumn frosts occur, when they are pulled and stored in pits or cellars, requiring much the same treatment as potatoes and similar root crops.
From 20 to 35 pounds of sliced or pulped roots, with a proper grain ration and dry foliage, is a day's ration for an ordinary dairy cow. Thus it will be seen that 2 1/2 tons will carry a cow through the usual five-months' winter feeding period. An acre or two of beets, carrots and turnips will be enough to supply any herd which is not large enough to make a silo profitable. With the development of the sugar-beet industry many implements and methods of culture have been devised which reduce the labor required to grow root crops.

Edwardsville School Notes.

On Friday afternoon, October 28, the pupils of the Edwardsville school gave a splendid program consisting of songs and readings. There were eleven very interesting numbers on this program.

At the conclusion of the exercises the Mothers' Club served ice cream and cake and it is needless to say the boys and girls did full justice to these good things to eat.

We all went home feeling that Edwardsville community is a fine place for a school as the patrons have the true school spirit.

THE PETITE ROBE

Parisian Garment Has Lost Nothing of Its Prestige.

Trifle Less Diversified in Style—Adheres Mostly to One Straight, Uncompromising Line.

The petite robe, that loveliest of all Parisian achievements, has lost nothing of its prestige during this spring season. It is, perhaps, a trifle less diversified in style than it once was, but though it adheres mostly to one straight and uncompromising line, it is none the less developed in a thousand different ways, each more perfect than before. In the subtleties of these developments there lies a deal of charm that seems impossible to imitate.

Most of the daytime dresses, if the collections are viewed as a whole, are made from very fine serge or from one of the many varieties of crepe de chine. More often the frocks of dark blue serge, for this is a material of never-ending popularity with the Parisienne, are trimmed with some shade of red applied in more or less intricate ways. But with the blue goes the red almost as a matter of course.

The combination of red and blue is used by Paris many times over, and on most of her daytime frocks she is making a point of the longer skirt which reaches below the ankles.

Doellet shows an adaptation of the Brittany costumes, which have had all sorts of interested attention in Paris. It is the prettiest combination of blue serge with red trimmings. Another frock which appeared at the opening of this maison was made up of two panels of red foulard, one at front and one at back, and each of these was embroidered in an all-over pattern with dark blue threads. The remaining portions of the dress, that is, the full sides and sleeves, were of blue serge, to carry out this ever-prevailing style of red and blue.

In the same style one sees among the collection of Marjorie of Ames a red and blue dress called Marmonet. Madeleine of Madeleine have a red and blue frock, very simple and chaste in line. It is built about a high belt of red flate lace, around which all the interest centers. The skirt is full and the bodice slightly bloused. At this most popular of designers the afternoon gowns of silk and crepe are very apt to have their skirts slit in some way so that another and a lighter shade appears between the apertures. And it is true that these foundation colors are more often than not adorned with embroideries of different sorts. Moynieux shows a street frock in dark blue serge which has a wide, crushed belt of brightly glistening red leather.

FASHION NOTES OF INTEREST

A fine black lace frock has a touch of black orlone fringe.

Pokes and smart bow trimmed hats are prominent in the spring showings.

Some of the new skirts shown in Paris are only a "nomme" fastened to an elongated bodice.

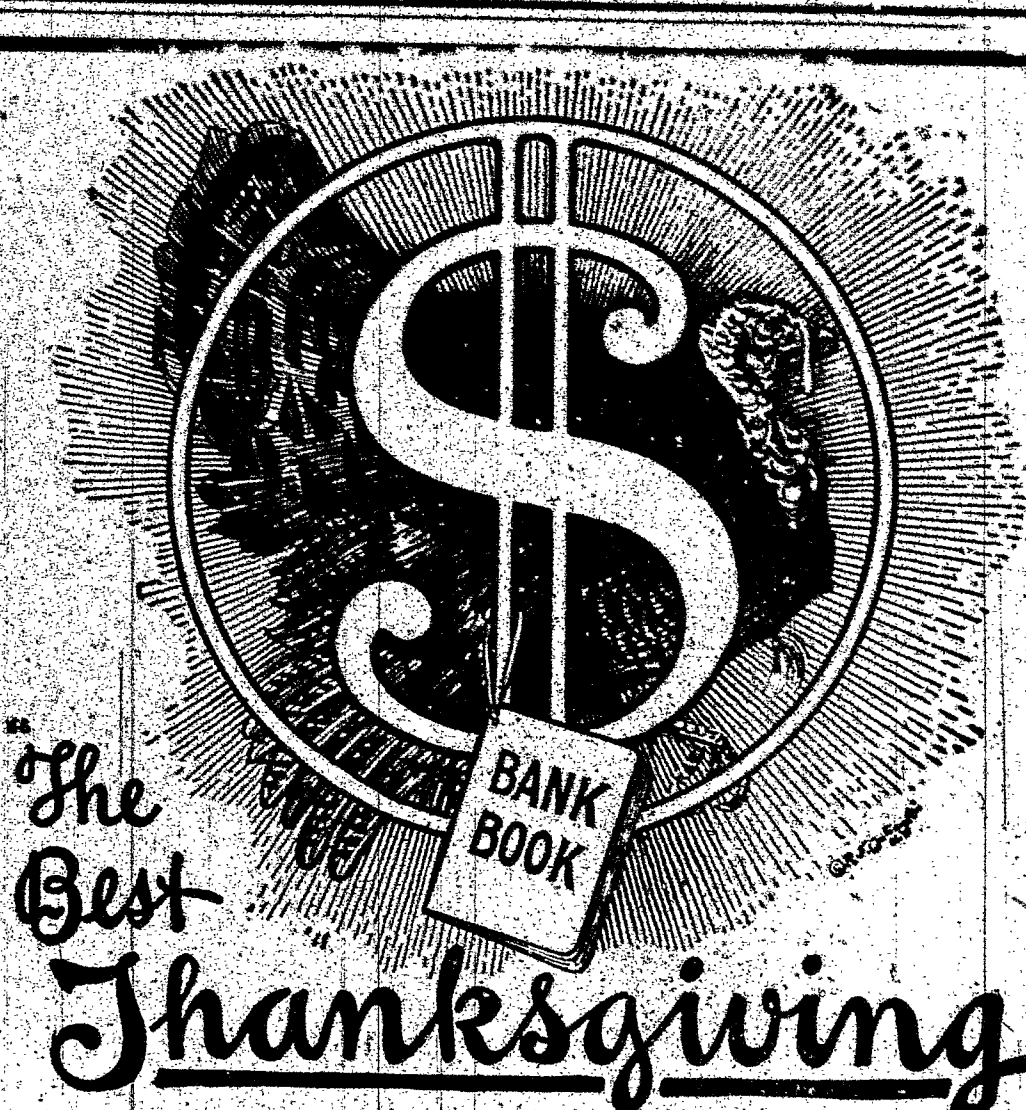

Appliques of colored leather are seen on pumps of patent leather.

Gray and "honeydew" a shade deeper than apricot is a smart combination.

While many drooping effects are seen on the spring millinery some extremely high effects are also prominent.

Reports from abroad acclaim the deeply fringed shawl as the favored evening wrap.

Hankershot draped panels are chic for evening gowns.
